Administration

Each year, when time dictates the need to prepare appropriate remarks for the graduating class of Hahnemann, I marvel at the rapid passage of time. I recall most distinctly greeting the class of 1982 on the first days of its arrival, and the sense of excitement and expectation that marked the occasion. Now, in moments of reflection that cannot be suppressed, I question how completely Hahnemann's educational program has fulfilled your expectations and has honored its commitment to enrich the minds of all who have graced its halls, classrooms and laboratories. The answer to that query is a true measure of the institution's worth. However, it is unlikely to mature for some time to come.

Although some may view Hahnemann's designation as a University a trivial achievement, an academic vanity and of no particular usefulness in the evaluation contest, it is well to recall that the designation of University followed a meticulous survey of people, places and programs and clearly underscored the fine quality of our educational effort. Indeed, dedication to excellence in the health sciences may very well be claimed as Hahnemann's Hallmark, as well as the legacy of the Class of 1982.

This and every future graduating class will reaffirm Hahnemann's new status. That cannot take place, however, without your continuing dedication to scholarship, to a unique capacity for experimentation and innovation, and to an awareness of the meaning and dignity of life.
